Rapid microbiological methods

What the seminar will cover and why you should attend:

The use of 'rapid testing' techniques is becoming more prevalent in microbiology laboratories, as they strive to produce faster and more accurate results to enhance product safety. New technologies, approaches and agars are constantly being developed. This seminar will explore the science behind rapid method testing. Presentations from key experts in the area of rapid method microbiological testing will:

- cover approaches to rapid method testing
- provide up-to-date information on new and emerging technologies
- appraise methods and data analysis

The event will also feature an exhibition from rapid method kit manufacturers, who will be featuring some of their most recent developments.
